JOE RICHARDSON

Shot and Killed on the Street of an Indiana Town. Anderson, Ind., Feb. 8.—Joe Richardson, a desperado, was shot and killed on the streets of Pendleton by Marshal Cook. The marshal had a warrant for Richardson's arrest issued by a court in Illinois. He tried to arrest Richardson, when the latter drew a revolver and began shooting. The marshal fired three shots, each taking effect on Richardson. Richardson had served a term in the state prison for highway robbery.

In Favor of Hammerstein.

New York, Feb. 8.—Oscar Hammerstein was awarded a verdict of $5,000 in his suit against the New York Life Insurance company. When the New York Life insurance company took possession of the Olympia theater building on upper Broadway, it is claimed that the scenery, machinery, carpets, gas and electric fittings in the building were covered by the loan. Mr. Hammerstein demanded these things as his personal property, and when they were refused he brought suit to recover $70,000.

For Relief of Soldiers.

New York, Feb. 8.—Mr. Bryan spoke in Carnegie Music Hall on "Pending Problems," under the auspices of Winfield Scott Hancock post No. 239, A. A. R., of the Department of New York, for the relief of soldiers and sailors and orphans. More than 1,000 men and women paid the price of admission. With the hope of filling the big hall, those in the galleries were invited down stairs. Still there were empty seats.

Bickford's Admission.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Walter M. Bickford was practically the only witness before the senate committee on elections in the Clark investigation. He was one of Senator Clark's special friends in the last Montana senatorial campaign. Mr. Bickford contradicted much of the testimony of Speaker Stiff, Senator Myers, Representative Sullivan, Dr. Hector, Mr. Cowen and others. He, however, admitted, tendering to Dr. Hector $7,000 with which to lift the indebtedness of Representative Woods of Revere county, saying that he had not intended that Mr. Woods should know of his doing this, and that his only purpose was to control the debt so that the Daly people could not get hold of it and thus force Woods into voting contrary to his inclination. He received the money from Senator Clark's son, and when it was not accepted for Mr. Woods by Dr. Hector he returned it to Mr. Clark.

Depew and Pettigrew.

Washington, Feb. 8.—A lively tilt between Mr. Depew (Rep., N. Y.) and Mr. Pettigrew (SIL, Rep., S. D.) was the feature in the early proceedings of the senate. Mr. Depew read a letter from President Schurman of the Philippine commission satirizing statements made by Mr. Pettigrew in a speech several days ago, and then commented caustically upon the methods of the South Dakota senator in introducing the evidence of such men as President Schurman and Admiral Dewey through the statements of Aguinaldo. Mr. Pettigrew replied sharply, repeating much that he has said heretofore. Several speeches in opposition to the gold standard bill were made.

The War Situation.

London, Feb. 8.—A special despatch from Spearman's camp says: "Our further advance is at the moment prevented, as the Boers enliven us from their positions on Spion Kop and Doorn Kloof. Our casualties, although estimated at 250, are trifling, considering the great importance of the movement just concluded."

The War Situation.

London, Feb. 8.—The British columns are putting themselves in motion in all parts of the South African field. A combined attack upon the Boers appears to be in progress. General Buller has gained a footing on the plateau north of the Tugela, after two days' hard fighting. On the far western border Lord Methuen has begun a turning movement against the Boer right, while General MacDonald threatens the Boer left, thus relieving the pressure on Lord Methuen's front. Lord Roberts, who is in the middle of the theater of war, has begun the march on Bloemfontein. The Boers have taken the initiative against General Gatacre, attacking two of his positions at Sterkstroom. It really looks as though the general forward movement so long talked of were in progress. General Buller's third attempt at relieving Ladysmith absorbs attention. Telegrams from 100 to 200 words from a dozen correspondents have been passed by the censor, who has, apparently, re-dated messages written Monday or Tuesday, to Wednesday at 6 p. m. From these it is clear that General Buller, up to Tuesday evening, had taken one half, had repulsed a Boer counter attack, and

ROYAL MCM Baking Powder in 1900

The strongest, purest, most efficient and wholesome of leavening agents. Not lowest in price, yet the most economical; in 1900, as in the past, indispensable to the work of the pastry cook.

The New Year brings prosperity almost unsurpassed in the history of the country.

For every one there is money enough to buy that to eat which is pure, sound, good, wholesome.

Why should we use cheap, impure, unhealthy articles of food? There is no economy in them; they endanger the health, they may cost life. There are reported almost daily cases of sickness caused by eating cake, puddings or biscuit made with the cheap, alum baking powders.

In all articles for food buy and use only the best. The good health of the family is of first consideration.

Alum is used in baking powders because it is cheap, costing less than two cents a pound. It is a corrosive poison. Think of feeding it to children! Yet the manufacturers of well-known alum powders are actually denying that they contain alum.

TWO GREAT DAMS.

One noted for its success, the other for its failure.

Holyoke's $750,000 dam, one of the largest in the world, now stands practically completed, and the builders say it will answer the needs of the "Paper City" for a great many years. The dam is not alone an important acquisition to Holyoke's manufacturing interests, but is a triumph in the art of masonry that is destined to be a pattern for future structures of this kind. It is said to be the only solid stone dam having a curved or concaved front. That the Connecticut river has been the making of Holyoke is today admitted by those who have watched the marvelous growth of the city since the completion of the first coffee dam in 1848. Holyoke was then a mere village—"Ireland Depot" they called it. The completion of the coffee dam was anticipated with great interest, and when the eventful day for letting of the water came the Connecticut River railroad ran special trains to accommodate the hundreds of sightseers from all parts of the state.

The pond filled slowly. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the water was about half way from the top of the dam. From then on the pond seemed to fill more rapidly. The interest among the spectators increased. Suddenly somebody shouted, "It's leaking!" This was followed by a general scramble of the people who stood on the bank of the river channel below the dam. At 3:30 the air was rent with a crackling and splitting sound, followed by a deafening roar. The dam was a failure. The structure had broken from its foundations, turned over and was swept down with the mighty current, the grand volume of water asserting its right and supreme power once more.

An amusing anecdote in connection with the bursting of the dam is told by Jones S. Davis, who, though very feeble, is still a conspicuous character in the streets of Holyoke. Mr. Davis was then agent of the company which had built the dam. Some of the stockholders were Boston men, and it was Mr. Davis' mission to telegraph them the success or failure of the structure. His dispatches were in this order and are given verbatim:

"10 a. m.—The gates were just closed and the water is filling behind the dam."

"12 m.—The dam is leaking badly."

"2 p. m.—The stones of the bulk-head are giving way to the pressure."

"3:30 p. m.—Your old dam has gone to—by way of Williams-"

In 1847 the legislature was petitioned for an act of incorporation of the Hadley Falls company for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a dam across the Connecticut river to create a water power for manufacturing purposes. The gauging of the water showed it had a power equal to 30,000 horsepower. On Oct. 27, 1849, the dam which had just been replaced with the stone one was completed. Another large crowd had assembled, but there was no leakage this time. The structure held the tremendous pressure well, and when the water had acquired a full head it fell over the crest in a continuous, unbroken sheet—Boston Herald.

French Express Trains the Fastest.

The French railroad system, which in point of size and importance ranks about fourth among those of the world, stands easily at the head of the list in respect of the number and speed of its express passenger trains. A recent tabulation of these trains shows that Le Chemin de Fer du Nord operates no less than 45 trains a day with an average running speed, including stops, of from 50 to 60 miles an hour. Of these 11 have a speed of 50 miles an hour, 9 of about 55 miles, 11 of about 52 miles, 3 of about 53 miles, 10 of from 54 to 57 miles, and one train has a timed running speed of 60½ miles an hour.

While this country and Great Britain have a few trains of from 50 to 64 miles an hour speed and the United States runs two summer trains at the rate of about 60 miles an hour, such speeds are not characteristic of the whole of the express service. Mr. Charles Rous-Marten, who is the best known expert abroad on the question of express trains and their performance, states from personal knowledge that the trains are not by any means mere racing outfit, but weigh from 150 to, in some cases, as high as 300 tons—Scientific American.

Had a Marble Heart.

Hartford has produced a case of a man with a marble heart. He was Andrew Nilson Levin, a Swedish tailor, who recently died at the hospital. An autopsy showed both auricles and the left ventricle covered with a deposit of calcium salts, the same substance that makes marble. The deposit was from an eighth to a quarter of an inch thick and lay on the heart like a piece of armor plate. It was as hard as marble. The heart was exhibited at the meeting of the medical society.

The case is the first of the kind ever known. Levin's heart weighed 16 ounces, four more than the normal heart—New York Journal.

They did not do anything of the kind." "Well, then, pap, what did they do?" "They suspended him." "Well, that's what I said," replied the little fellow. ## FARM AND GARDEN

PRACTICAL FORESTRY.

How to Make Woodlands Profitable.

Waste is Ordinary Lumbering.

The importance of good forestry in this country is becoming more appreciated not only in connection with extensive timber tracts, but with the smaller wood lots upon farms. Practical forestry in the Adirondack region as recently carried on by forest owners under advice from government experts serves to illustrate methods of management that are most profitable and equally applicable elsewhere on either a large or a small scale. It appears from the report of their work that

SPRUCE STUMP CUT EIGHTEEN INCHES TOO HIGH.

Smooth bromegrass will withstand changes in the temperature without injury. Its ability to produce good pasture during long periods of drought far exceeds that of any other cultivated variety.

Where the lumbering is done under the system of contracts and subcontracts, the temptation for a jobber to do careless work is very great. Unless carefully watched he is apt to cut unnecessarily high stumps, to leave large tops in order to avoid the trouble of trimming off the branches, to leave trees lodged in hard woods and otherwise fail to follow the standard of good lumbering.

The principal loss arising from careless lumbering is occasioned by (1) needlessly high stumps, (2) large tops, (3) skips left in the woods, (4) valuable timber used in leveling roads and (5) destruction of small growth in felling, skidding and hauling.

When the trees are felled by chopping, the stumps are cut at the point at which the ax naturally falls when the chopper stands erect. This is usually about three inches above the ground.

The majority of trees, however, are somewhat lower, averaging about 30 inches in height. The sawyers protest against cutting low stumps, because it tires their backs to stoop over. Experience by careful lumbermen has proved that such high stumps are entirely needless.

Where lumbering is done under contract it has been the usual custom in the Adirondacks to cut only logs which will scale six inches at the top end. Where timber is cut for pulp smaller logs can be used, and many companies which operate their own camps compel the choppers to cut logs as small as five and often four inches. The average size of the top log is nearer eight inches. There are in some cases 4 to 12 feet of wood left in tops which is fit for pulp and which is actually so used by many companies.

The point will at once be raised that the tops are of inferior quality. The reply is that many companies use this material and that the total amount is so great that it would pay to utilize it even at only one-fourth the price of the rest of the timber.

The majority of skidways are built of spruce. It is the custom to leave the skids in the woods and the owner loses not only the stumpage value of the timber thus wasted, but also the advantage of future increment which the trees would take on if left standing.

Destruction of small growth in lumbering takes place on steep roads, where the teamsters frequently scatter spruce

NOT FISH STORIES.

But Tales of a Hardened Mountain Climber.

Fish stories are all very well in their way observes the New York Commercial Advertiser, but when it comes to an out and out "yarn" the man of the woods can outdo any fisherman who ever pulled a sea serpent aboard while fishing for black bass. Bear, deer and wildcat yarns enliven the cool evenings in the Advertisers just now, but the other day an Englishman who has a passion for climbing added his mite to the fund of romance. He is climbing all the mountains of America systematically. Pike's peak, Mount Washington and Whiteface, he considered worthy of his skill. But Blue mountain is an ant hill. He went up on its crest one morning to see the sun rise, and after trotting home to breakfast and spending the day fishing he went again to see the sun set (most people start at 5 in the morning and come home at 7 in the evening when they climb Blue mountain). "Of course, I'm a hardened climber," said this energetic Briton, as he stirred the fire of pine boughs, "and I've had some funny experiences. Climbing isn't dangerous out here, that's why I get about so quickly. I remember once, years ago, when I was quite a young fellow, my two brothers and I were clambering about the Gorner glacier with an elderly uncle of ours. He was a poly-poly old chap, and he slipped and got wedged up to his waist in a crack in the ice, so firmly that we almost dispaired of ever getting him out again. We pulled and tugged and nearly dragged all his clothes off; then we gave him our flasks to drain. He said he didn't know what was the use of writing and talking so much about the St. Bernards when a fellow could get in such a plight as his and not be able to get any assistance. Then he called the whole party together and began to dictate a codicil to his will, setting out any legatees "who might happen to be present on the occasion of any accident resulting in his demise." I remember the wording of it to this day—it made such an impression on me at the time!" "How terrible! And then I suppose he perished miserably?" broke in an awed voice. "Oh, dear, no," said the bold Briton, cheerily. "My brothers and I made a super-human effort and hauled him to the surface just in time."

Berlin's Motor Automobiles.

The postoffice of Berlin has just put into practical use six of the "Leutzel automobiles." A large additional number of these horseless wagons are under construction at the works of the Gesellschaft für Automobile Wagenbau, which is a good proof that this system of mail delivery has come to stay in Germany and ceased to be an experiment. Several other large cities in Germany will soon adopt the same delivery method.

BEEF FOR THE BOERS.

Kansas City Packers Supply Oom Paul's Army With Provisions.

If there are any people on the fence in the Boer-English controversy, they are probably the Kansas City packers, for just now they are filling their coffers from the treasures of both governments, and they apparently don't care how much longer the war lasts or which side wins, says the Kansas City Times. It takes a tremendous lot of rations to keep the contending armies in fighting trim, and America contributes a good part of the subsistence both for Johnny Bull and Oom Paul. In fact, nearly all of the meat comes from this side of the water, and the Kansas City packing houses are getting their share of the orders.

England has all the best of it in buying its stores, for no trouble is experienced in the exportation of goods consigned to English stations, and once in the hands of the British customs officers the shipments are pretty apt to reach their destinations. It is different, however, with the Boers, for their supplies are not safe from seizure until they have arrived inside the Transvaal, and it is a long and dangerous route that they must take before they reach that faraway land.

There are said to be English spies in Kansas City, who watch the shipment of export freight and report to their government the forwarding of Boer supplies. Usually when reports of this nature are made the shipments are intercepted, and the packing house people have to take precautions to prevent these secret agents from knowing so much.

There is one packing house, and the same plan is probably followed by the others, that sends all of its Boer supplies to a private firm in New York, and from there it is rebilled to some neutral European port, where a friendly vessel is waiting to smuggle it through to Pretoria. That is why New York is just now getting more shipments of beef than the big metropolis ever did before.

The packing house managers won't say that they are shipping any meat into South Africa for the Boers, but the foremen will tell you that the canning departments are working overtime to fill mysterious orders, and the bosses on the shipping docks will tell you that the long strings of cars that are pulled out of the packing house yards three or four times a day are not all going to the regular customers.

As far as Kansas City's commercial interests are concerned, it doesn't matter how long the warfare continues, and the packing house magnate who has found a bonanza is not going to make any kick at all.

GUNSHOT LUNG WOUNDS.

An Army Surgeon Relates a Case Similar to Senator Goebel's.

The peculiar wound received by Senator Goebel by a rifle ball, like all technically so called gunshot wounds through the lungs, are usually fatal, though there are cases in the books of recovery from such lung perforations," said an army surgeon to a Washington Star reporter.

"These exceptional cases, however, are very rare. I recall one of the very few which have come under my personal observation, and, as a curious coincidence, the victim was a Kentuckian. "I was stationed at the Presidio, the military post at San Francisco, about ten years ago. One day, while at dinner, I was summoned to the hospital by an orderly, who informed me that a young soldier had attempted his life. "I found the man on a cot in the usual state of semicollapse from shock. A bullet from a Springfield rifle had completely perforated the left lung, passing close to the heart and the superior vena cava. That one or the other of the great arteries was not severed is remarkable from a professional standpoint and to a layman signified that the time for the young man to die had not yet come.

"Internal hemorrhage, the feature of Senator Goebel's case, did not manifest itself to an alarming degree, and the prognosis was favorable. In due time the soldier recovered and was discharged from the army, though his general health was, of course, impaired.

"It was one of the most interesting cases professionally that ever came under my personal notice.

"The young man enlisted from Kentucky. His comrade told me that he had been admitted to the bar and was of good family, but had enlisted because his sweetheart had jilted him. In a fit of despondency, alone and away from home, he had seated himself on the side of his cot in the barracks, placed his rifle at the proper angle and pulled the trigger with his toe.

"The ball passed through his body as I have described and buried itself in the ceiling, knocking off pieces of plaster on the floor. The fact that the young man was a Kentuckian had slipped my mind until the shooting of Senator Goebel made it a singular and sad coincidence."

Period of Cliff Dwellers.

Professor E. L. Hewett, president of the New Mexico Normal University, Las Vegas, announced recently that as a result of his explorations of the thousands of cliff and cave dwellings near Santa Fe last summer he has evidence that the cliff dwellers were contemporaneous with the mammoth and other animals of the tertiary period and that the mesas now arid, but at that time well watered and fertile. This discovery is contrary to the accepted theory by scientists that man is no older than the quaternary period and that the cliff dwellers were the Pueblo Indians, who made the dwellings only 800 or 400 years ago.—New York Tribune.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

One of the Capital's Interesting Men.
"Two Chairs Gaines" — May Adopt Metric System.

[Special Correspondence.]

One of the most interesting characters about Washington and one of the most highly respected of the 230 officials in the employ of Uncle Sam is Captain Charles Loeffler, the confidential messenger and doorkeeper of the president. Captain Loeffler probably knows more famous men than any other person living, because he has stood at the entrance of the executive chamber for over 30 years, and everybody who has entered the presence of the chief magistrate of this nation during all that time has handed a card to him. Captain Loeffler is a native of Germany, but he came to this country when a child and enlisted in the army as soon as he became of age. He rose from the ranks to be a sergeant before the civil war broke out and was detailed for confidential duty with Secretary Stanton at the war department. During the entire war he served as a messenger and bearer of dispatches for President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton to the commanding generals in the field and the day after the assassination of President Lincoln was detailed as a bodyguard for Secretary Stanton. That was not a very pleasant duty just at that time.

The day after the inauguration of General Grant Captain Loeffler was detailed as an orderly for the president and took charge of the door at which he now stands. He has been there ever since. When his term of enlistment in the army expired, he was placed upon the roll of civil employees at the White House, and his name remained there until last year, when President McKinley nominated him to the senate as a captain in the United States army, and he was unanimously confirmed by the senate.

The packing house managers won't say that they are shipping any meat into South Africa for the Boers, but the foremen will tell you that the canning departments are working overtime to fill mysterious orders, and the bosses on the shipping docks will tell you that the long strings of cars that are pulled out of the packing house yards three or four times a day are not all going to the regular customers.

As far as Kansas City's commercial interests are concerned, it doesn't matter how long the warfare continues, and the packing house magnate who has found a bonanza is not going to make any kick at all.

Two Chairs Gaines.

There is a man who is a member of the Tennessee congressional delegation whose name is John Wesley Gaines. He is known to his friends as "Two Chairs Gaines." He gained this sobriquet as a result of an interview with former Governor Taylor of Tennessee. One day, it is said, Mr. Gaines had occasion to call at the executive office of the Tennessee governor, and finding nobody to present him he entered the inner office and introduced himself.

"My name is Gaines, governor," said the Tennessee congressman.

"Howd ye do," replied the governor.

"Ye used to know my father?"

"Ah! Yes, yes; have a chair, Mr. Gaines," was the governor's reply as he continued to peruse some official documents.

"But I am Gaines, Congressman Gaines," persisted the congressman, in a vain effort to make an impression of his presence on the chief executive of the state.

"Ah! Indeed, indeed; have two chairs."

The repetition of this story has earned for Mr. Gaines the peculiar title of "Two Chairs Gaines."

May Adopt Metric System.

Representative Southard of Ohio is a believer in the metric system of weights and measures. "There is a bill before our committee on commerce, weights and measures," said he, "to adopt the metric system after July 1, 1902, in all the departments of the government for the transaction of all business requiring the use of weights and measurements. It was introduced by Representative Littauer of New York and I believe will be favorably reported from the committee. A favorable report was made on a similar bill in the last congress."

"I wish that the English language could be applied to the various terms used in the metric system," explained Mr. Southard. "That would make it far more satisfactory to me, but, as it does not seem possible, I suppose we shall have to adopt the system as it is and with the terms of denotation already fixed in the public mind."

The Two Webster Monuments.

It is not every statesman, however great, who can boast two monuments in Washington. Daniel Webster is the exception to the rule, and there is something of a story back of it all. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts has always resented the use of New Hampshire in putting Webster in Statuary Hall as a son of that state. He was born in New Hampshire, but as his name is associated with Massachusetts the sons of that state have always contended that the new statue of New Hampshire in Statuary Hall should stand for Massachusetts. Each state is allowed to put the statues of two men in Statuary Hall, which is in the capitol. Now there is another monument to Webster in the city.

Architect Taylor's Plan.

Supervising Architect Taylor of the treasury department has prepared a scheme for beautifying the city of Washington. Immediately opposite the executive mansion is a fine park—Lafayette square. The block lying to the east of that square is now occupied by a theater, built on the site of the old Seward-Blaine mansion; the Dolly Madison house, now occupied by the Cosmos club; the Riggs National bank, a hotel and a few buildings of minor importance. On the corner nearest the White House the government is already starting a new building, to be devoted to the department of justice. Mr. Taylor would have the government buy the entire block, put the department of justice in the middle of it and park the remainder.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

A genealogical joke is recorded by Sylvanus Urban in his August "Conferences on Books and Men" in The Cornhill.

A man applied to the college for a coat of arms and was asked if any of his ancestors had been renowned for any singular achievement. The man paused and considered, but could recollect nothing.

"Your father?" said the herald, aiding his memory. "Your grandfather? Your great-grandfather?"

"No," returned the applicant, "I never knew that I had a great-grandfather or a grandfather."

"Of yourself?" asked this creator of dignity.

"I know nothing remarkable of myself," returned the man, "only that being once locked up in Ludgate prison for debt I found means to escape from an upper window, and that, you know, is no honor in a man's scutcheon."

"And how did you get down?" said the herald.

"I procured a cord, fixed it round the neck of the statue of King Lud, on the outside of the building, and thus let myself down."

"I have it," said the herald. "No honor. Lineally descended from King Lud, and his coat of arms will do for you."

REMAINS

Of Fireman Pugh Arrive

Funeral Services to be Held Friday Afternoon.

When the Collision Occurred Pugh was shoveling coal into the Engine's fire-box.

Under-taker Grosjean and William Pugh returned to this city from Detroit over the C. H. & D. at 2:20 o'clock this morning, bringing with them the remains of the latter's son, Fireman John Pugh, who was killed in the D. & L. N. wreck near Detroit yesterday morning, an account of which appeared in the TIMES-DEMOCRAT last evening. The body was taken to Grosjean's parlor and this morning was removed to the home of the deceased's parents, No. 905 east High street, where the funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Swanson, of the Congregational church, at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be made in Woodlawn cemetery. The deceased was born at Gomer, this county, 32 years ago.

Concerning the accident in which the unfortunate fireman lost his life the Detroit Evening News says:

"An open switch, supposed to be due to the carelessness of section men, was responsible for the death this morning of John Pugh, a locomotive fireman, of Lima, O.

"The Detroit & Lima Northern train for Lima left the Fort street depot at 7:42 o'clock this morning. While on the Union Terminal track, at the switch leading to the Solley Process Co. plant in Delray, the engine followed by two passenger coaches, ran into a train of 20 freight cars that were standing on the siding. The train was going at a speed of about 12 miles an hour. A car loaded with brick at the end of the freight train bore the brunt of the collision.

"Fireman John Pugh was shoveling coal into the furnace at the time of the collision. The shock threw him back into the tender and then his almost lifeless body was pitched back in front of the open door of the furnace. "Dr. Clippert, of Defay, was called, made a hurried examination, and ordered him sent to the Sanitarium, where he died at 9:30. It was found that Pugh's spine had been fractured at the base and his hip broken. He was conscious up to the time of his death. He was 31 years of age, married and lived at 849 Wayne street, Lima, Ohio. His wife was telegraphed for, and will arrive this afternoon.

"Engineer William Halsey escaped unharmed. One of the passengers had his cheek bruised. The engine was badly wrecked."

THE REASON

King Solomon's Mines

Are Selling Their Stock on the Installment Plan

And Why They Agree to Refund the Money Invested in "Series A" Stock With Interest at Four Per Cent.

Several times during the past few days I have been asked why it is that I am selling stock in King Solomon's mines on the installment plan, and why the company agrees to refund the investment made with interest. I want to answer these questions as frankly as the inquiries have been made. My associates and myself have thus far furnished all the money necessary to consolidate these properties, but our means are not unlimited, although by no means exhausted.

Realizing that in this matter, as in all large ventures, the company sooner or later must become a borrower, we determined to select our creditor. We had all of us had more or less experience in raising money in the east and were familiar with the dangers and expense incurred in making loans in the usual manner. In the first place if we wanted $1,000,000 they would expect the property to be mortgaged to secure the loan of this amount. The mortgage would have to bear 4 per cent interest at least. Then they would sell these bonds at about 70c on the dollar. Financial result: Our property mortgaged for $1,000,000 at 4 per cent and only $700,000 to show for it. Their next demand would be for the pooling of all stock until the bonds were redeemed, thus eliminating the voting power of the stock and virtually placing the management of our property out of our hands until the bonds were paid. That is giving the control of the shaping of the destiny of the company into other hands during the most critical period of its existence. Knowing the history of such deals we could, in fancy, see ourselves frozen out entirely before the bonds were paid off. We determined to avoid these known dangers. Right here let me digress to pay tribute to the sagacity of as great a financier as Ohio ever produced, the late Senator Calvin S. Brice. Mr. Brice and his operations were the wonder of Wall street financiers and brokers. When he controlled the destiny of the Lake Erie & Western railway many attempts were made to raid his stock or to force certain combinations inimical to the interests of the road, but they were always unsuccessful. The reason for this was very simple. Mr. Brice never allowed Wall street a chance to finance his deals. He did that himself. Upon his books were over 3,000 estates who had confidence in his integrity and ability to direct his various enterprises. These people only wanted their money safely invested, and left the voting of their stock entirely with Mr. Brice. The result was that he, and he alone, controlled and shaped the destiny of the enterprise, and was always in a position to safeguard the interests of his constituency.

It is along these lines that I expect to work. I am borrowing this money from the people at the same rate of interest I would have to pay to the trust companies, (4 per cent) and I hope to have a constituency who will have confidence in me as I have the most implicit confidence in them.

As that greatest of American citizens, the revered Lincoln, believed in the common people, so do I believe in them and feel the nearer I am to them the safer I am. In regard to installment payments I will say that we prefer to have payments made in this way for various reasons. In the first place it gives to everyone a chance to become associated with us, and again we do not need the money all at one time and prefer our stockholders to have the use of their own money until we do need it. Our building operations will cover a period of many months and all we need is to know that when the month comes around we have a sufficient income to add to the production of our mines to enable us to meet the current months expenditures and contracts.

If any one will examine the Rocky Mountain Range from Mexico to British Columbia, they will discover that there has never been a failure to develop great dividend paying mines wherever there has existed the two essentials, viz: a large body of ore and an abundance of power. With these

FEEDING THE GUNS.

How British Troops in Action Are Supplied with Ammunition.

If it were not that there is a very excellent and elaborate system of supplying soldiers with ammunition during the course of a fight, it would be almost hopeless to attack any portion. Modern cartridges are very heavy things to carry. The long bullet, the heavy brass-work of the case and the weight of the wads and powder all combine to produce an article which, though it is of small compass, is very weighty.

When our soldiers are attacking a Boer position, their operations require that each man shall have a large supply of ammunition. This must all be carried forward as the fight progresses. The Boer entrenched upon a hilltop may have the largest supply of his ammunition by his side, and he is not weighted down by it, as our soldiers are when storming a position.

During a protracted fight the British soldier is in most instances compelled to tire away all the ammunition which he is personally able to carry. An ordinary private carries 100 rounds. Just before an action when heavy firing is expected, this 100 rounds is supplemented by 50 more from the battalion reserve of 77 rounds per man. Thus each private advances into battle carrying no less than 150 possible一颗s.

When the stomach acts easily and naturally, a desire is created for good simple food and a good appetite is the sure result.

With cod-liver oil as formerly taken the medicinal elements which it contained were too often unable to counteract the harm that was done by the obnoxious grease that enveloped them.

Now that in Vinol we have those same elements separated from the vile tasting fat, we have a tonic and restorer that is simply marvelous in its action.

The following is a letter that will explain itself.

"This is to certify that I have used six bottles of Vinol, and have found it of great value as an appetizer and tonic in general debility. I have received so much benefit from its use that I gladly furnish this testimonial in order that others may be induced to give it a trial and prove to themselves its recuperative powers." —Mrs. ELIZABETH FRENCH, Waterbury, Conn.

We want every one in this place to know more about our Vinol, how it cures and what it cures. Certainly the greatest tonic and restorer we have ever sold.

We, therefore, cordially invite any one interested to call upon us, and we want all to bear in mind that we will gladly refund to any one who is not satisfied with the action of Vinol every cent they pay for it.

APPETITES

Created and Maintained by Vinol.

THAT THE FOOD IS DISEST- ED IS ALSO EQUALLY NECESSARY.

We Recommend Vinol as an Appetite Creator.

WE GUARANTEE THAT VINOL WILL AID DIGESTION.

Vinol is the greatest aid to digestion that we have ever known.

It is because Vinol acts so beneficially upon the stomach that it accomplishes so much good.

Vinol contains the active curative principles that are found in cod liver oil, without any oil or grease.

These medicinal elements act so favorably upon the stomach, that this organ obtains for itself the elements necessary for creating new flesh muscle tissue and for making rich red blood.

When the stomach acts easily and naturally, a desire is created for good simple food and a good appetite is the sure result.

With cod-liver oil as formerly taken the medicinal elements which it contained were too often unable to counteract the harm that was done by the obnoxious grease that enveloped them.

Now that in Vinol we have those same elements separated from the vile tasting fat, we have a tonic and restorer that is simply marvelous in its action.

The following is a letter that will explain itself.

"This is to certify that I have used six bottles of Vinol, and have found it of great value as an appetizer and tonic in general debility. I have received so much benefit from its use that I gladly furnish this testimonial in order that others may be induced to give it a trial and prove to themselves its recuperative powers." —Mrs. ELIZABETH FRENCH, Waterbury, Conn.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

The Baronet Tells How He Slept, a Beggar, in City Hall Park.

"And the poor fellows I met those nights that I slept in city hall park. Unfortunate as I was, I did give something to know what became of them afterward—whether God was as good to them afterward as he has been to me, and whether they are the better for the lesson of adversity." These are the words of Millionaire Sir Thomas Lipton in Leslie's Weekly. "Those days in New York were hard—hard in a way that you could scarcely imagine. Many and many a night did I stand outside the windows of the Fifth Avenue, wondering what the rooms inside were like, and whether I'd ever have money enough to be able to afford to sleep in one for just a night. Yet through all the storm of trouble and sorrow I never lost courage. There was something in my bones that seemed to tell me that I should get there at last. It was a kind of instinct, I suppose, or a touch of the bulldog—goodness only knows. I don't know that I ever felt so cut to the heart as in that morning when, nervous and trembling—I'd eaten nothing for nearly two days—I entered the office of a banker—rich then and richer now—in search of a situation. I've never forgotten how he looked up, glared at me over his glasses, growled, 'Turn that fellow out' and walked away. I met that man at a dinner the other night—thirty years older, but the same, boys, always the same. That kind of animal never changes, except for hair and wrinkles. He came up smiling, silky, obsequious. I remembered his name. I knew him again. He began to stammer a clumsy apology, and his apology was more unendurable than the original affront." Yet those days in New York were not without their results, remarked one of the group.

Twentieth Century Dates.

The twentieth century, which will begin on Tuesday, Jan. 1, 1901, will have 24 leap years, the greatest number possible. February will have five Sundays three times—1920, 1948 and 1976. The earliest possible date on which Easter can occur is March 12.

The last time it occurred on that date was 1918. The latest that Easter can occur is April 23. It will occur but one time in the coming century on that date—1943. The middle day of the century will be Jan. 1, 1951. There will be 880 eclipses during the coming century. In 1935 there will be seven eclipses. There will be eight solar eclipses visible in the United States, 1918, 1923, 1925, 1945, 1954, 1970, 1984 and 1991. There will be 12 transits of Mercury. There will be no transit of Venus until 2004.

WANTED

To Quit Work Monday.

But Could Get No One to Shoot the Beaverdam Well.

Ernest Guild Finally Concluded to Make One More Shot and the Trip Cost Him His Life.

A strange coincidence in the tragic death of Ernest Guild, the oil well shooter who met a frightful death Monday afternoon by being blown to atoms when the Findlay Glycerine Co.'s magazine on the Jacob Boose farm, up, is related proprietor J. W. R. Atteleberger, of the Harrod House, where Guild always stopped when in the city. Mr. Atteleberger and Guild had been warm friends for about two years and while they were in conversation together on the Sunday evening just preceding the day of the tragedy, Guild was speaking of his intention to quit well-shooting in the near future and return to his home at Portland, Ind. Mr. Atteleberger urged him to resign immediately and take no further chances of being blown up by the dangerous explosive. He considered the advice seriously and finally promised that he would make the shot at Beaverdam the next day and would then resign. Mr. Atteleberger told him that if he had decided to quit he should not make another shot as he was just as liable to be killed in one day as in six months.

Guild was impressed by Mr. Atteleberger's earnestness and declared that if he could get a man to make the shot at Beaverdam for him he would not make another trip. He found another shooter, but the man would not consent to take the Beaverdam trip and Guild started away early Monday evening intending it to be his last trip with a nitro-glycerine wagon. And sure enough it was for it terminated in his death. He was in the act of performing the very last duty that was fraught with danger, when the awful accident that buried him to eternity occurred.

We Stricken With Measles at Manila and the Disease Destroyed His Eyesight.

Information has been received in this city from the Philippines announcing that Guy Clafin, a young soldier from this city, had lost his eyesight while confined in a hospital at Manila, the disability resulting from an attack of measles.

Young Clafin was formerly a Delphos boy, but for some time prior to enlisting in the army he made his home with the family of John Linderman, on Second street, being a nephew of Mrs. Linderman. He, together with his cousins, Will and Ed Linderman, enlisted last spring for service in the Philippines, and was assigned to one of the infantry regiments.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Laney, of west Market street, opened their beautiful home to the members of the Arbutus and Lotus clubs, who entertained their husbands and the members of "The Woman's Club." In the receiving line were the hostess, Mrs. J. J. Ewing, president of the Arbutus club, and Mrs. F. M. Bell, president of the Lotus club. This handsome home is one which adapts itself very kindly to social occasions, the rooms connecting conveniently, and last evening they were artistically decorated with loose clusters of fragrant roses and carnations with an intermingling of ferns and similar tall, white candles in gold candelabras helping to brighten the rooms. The only guests from out of town were Miss Grace Wiley, of Plaqua, and Miss Burus, of Coshcton. All were given convenient seats and then had the pleasure of listening to Mrs. Jonathan K. Brice, who gave one hour to the following readings:

Miss O'Connor has developed great musical talent and her many friends wish her great progress under her new Instructor.

Yesterday afternoon, notwithstanding gloomy skies, a cheery party of forty-five ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. F. M. Holmes to attend the west Market street Presbyterian Church Missionary Tea. The Indians of the west was the topic of the day, interesting articles being read by Mrs. Kinrade, Mrs. W. L. Porter and Mrs. Irving Street. Piano numbers were given by Mrs. W. L. Mackenzie and Violin numbers by Holmes Mackenzie and Harley Holmes. Coffee and doughnuts served to make all chat socially after the program.

N. Thompson, of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dunham, of Mendon, have returned to their respective homes after the burial of their mother, who had died at Mrs. Samuel Chisholm.

D. M. Hurless found the bodies on the kitchen floor. Coe would not tell him how the shooting occurred. Said he worked with Coe at the Ohio Southern shops and he appeared to be a quiet and peaceable man. He seemed to love his wife and witness had seen him often doing work about the house.

Patrolman Owen Lawless testified as to the general appearance of the room after the shooting occurred. He talked with Coe, who acknowledged that he had quarreled with his wife, and said that there would have been no trouble had it not been for outside parties. Coe said: "I guess I won't tell that." Richard Smith corroborated the statements of officer Lawless.

Joe Merkle, who found the notes which were so unfathomable, testified next, saying he found the letters written by Coe. Merkle said Coe said to him: "O, my God, what did I do?"

He said it was too late to talk as the thing was over.

Charles Warren, of the Gazette was the next called. Mr. Warren stated that he interviewed Frank Coe at the hospital the day after the tragedy, and that he, Coe, acknowledged to having quarreled with his wife before the shooting, which he said he had to do.

Dr. Harry Miller, hospital physician, was placed on the stand. Dr. Miller stated that the ball which entered

Coe's breast would have produced death, but it glanced. Nothing aside from this of much importance was brought out.

Pat Gleary testified that he found the pistol with which Coe did the shooting under a footstool. He said

Coe told him he had to do it.

It was 4:30 o'clock when this witness was examined, and the state then repeated the examination. The defense called for Dr. G. K. Taylor, of Cincinnati, who took the stand. Witness said he was called to attend Coe in
